Three Presidents Elected Yesterday

"Art." Mathewson, A. S. Lamb and John Abbott will preside over the Students' Council, the Athletic Association and the Arts' Undergraduate Society, respectively.

"Art." Mathewson is the president of the Students' Council.

It was officially stated to the Daily that the result of the voting was as follows:—

Mathewson .....	681
Henry .....	319
Majority .....	372

Fourteen of the ballots cast were declared irregular, making the total vote, 1,024. This shows an increase in the number of votes registered of 72 over the total vote of two years ago, when McNaughton was elected over Sargent.

The newly elected president is a member of Law '16, and president of his class. Last year, he studied in Paris, and during the present session, among other positions which he has filled, he has acted as President of the McGill Canadian Club. Besides, he was the leader of the Liberal party in the Mock Parliament.

ARTS UNDERGRAD. ELECTIONS.
John Abbott was the successful candidate in the Arts Undergraduate Society elections yesterday. The result was:—

John Abbott .....	71
Cliff Oughtred .....	69
Hilary Robertson .....	36
Paul Clarke .....	35

The plurality for Abbott is thus 11. Interest in the Arts Undergrad. elections was just as keen as that in the Council elections, and the students filed in all day long right up until five o'clock, when the polls closed.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION ELECTIONS.

A. S. Lamb, the popular gymnasium instructor, was chosen to fill the position of president of the Athletic Association, held yesterday afternoon in the Hall. Lamb is a member of Medicine '17, and has shown his competency during the past session by his untiring interest in all branches of sport, particularly indoor sport. He is probably the best representative that could have been chosen.

PROF. BATHO ON STRESS

Splendid Illustrated Address Before Physical Society

INTERFERENCE

Color Changes Appear as Stress Is Increased

By means of lantern views, in an excellent address, Prof. Batho yesterday afternoon discussed "The Measurement of Stress in Bodies by Means of Polarized Light."

He proved that in the measuring of the stress, the type of substance did not matter, so long as it obeyed the law of stress and strain, i.e., that stress varies as the force applied to it. The measurement of the distribution of stress cannot be in an ordinary substance, but can be found in glass.

Prof. Batho showed that polarized light will pass through glass which bears no strain. But if the glass is strained, it will be found that there is a property in the glass such that the light does not pass through it.

He showed that there is interference in the progress of light in the case of monochromatics, and that this interference causes several colours to appear, when light is cast through a strained glass.

Prof. Batho paid particular attention to the passage of light through cement bricks. The brickette was strained above and below. There was a different colour effect according as the strain was great or small.

He proceeded to a discussion of bending and simple compression stress and strain, and how it may be measured by means of polarized light. The glass, unloaded, was transparent throughout. A load was applied gradually. The neutral axis appeared in a black line. As the load was further applied, colours began to appear between the neutral axis and each face of the glass, showing different intensities of stress in the beam. These colours ran in straight lines, showing that intensity at a constant distance above the axis was constant, or the same throughout.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Students' Society will be held this morning at ten o'clock. Lectures will be suspended in all faculties from 10 to 1 o'clock to enable all students to be present. Reports of the year's activities will be presented. BE THERE!

LAST MEETING OF THE DELTA SIGMA

Election of Officers Will Be the Main Business

The last meeting of the Delta Sigma Society takes place this afternoon at half past four. So as to keep up the high standard which has been preserved during the year, the officers have been sharing neither time, nor trouble to make their final meeting a success; from the programme proposed it seems probable indeed that it may outlive the others.

The most important feature of the afternoon will be a short address from Miss Cameron. Those who have attended the final meeting in other years will realize how interesting and beneficial these speeches have been. For those who have not, to freshmen, or to any who have neglected their opportunities, there is still a unique pleasure in store.

The first business of the meeting will be the election of officers for the ensuing year. Although many of them will go in by acclamation, a peculiar interest is felt in the elections owing to the fact of their being three candidates for President, Miss Purdy, Miss Harvey and Miss Waterman. The members are reminded that the success of the Society depends to a very large degree upon the president, they should therefore consider carefully for whom they will vote. Although this matter is of chief importance to next year's seniors, the lower years will be almost equally affected and we know we can rely upon the College spirit of the present seniors to make them take a keen interest in the fate of the College after their departure. The President also states that she has various announcements to make of innovations which the executive have decided upon. The meeting will close with a tea, to which all are cordially invited who have attended the meeting.

ARCHITECTS ASSOCIATION

Listens to Interesting Talk From Mr. Bolles

THREE STYLES

Of Ornamentation Are Thoroughly Discussed

Mr. Bolles gave the Architects a very interesting evening last night in lecturing on "Ornament in Relation to Structural Work." The lecturer, in making a few preliminary remarks, laid stress upon the fact that the decoration and ornament as well as the style of architecture depended largely upon the physical, geological and climatic conditions of the country. Beginning with the massive decoration employed by the Egyptians, and passing through the plainer and more delicate type of the Assyrians, he concluded with the mode of ornament used in that style of architecture known as Byzantine.

After each style was dealt with in theory, appropriate slides were exhibited to demonstrate the lecturer's exact meaning. Mr. Bolles gave some very interesting details as to the manner in which that beautiful monument to the Christian Church, St. Sophia, was given the interior appearance of having its gold encrusted domes of indefinite height.

In this respect the lecturer compared it with St. Peter's at Rome, to the former's advantage. Mr. Bolles also continued to give a detailed account of the manner in which this edifice was at once made artistic, and yet retained its original strength.

The meeting adjourned after the business of the association had been completed for the evening, and Mr. Bolles, accompanied by Professor Ludlow and the members of the society, proceeded to judge some works of art (?) in the draughting room.

Statement of McGill Daily Account

RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS TO MARCH 17.

The third year of publication of the McGill Daily has been a success financially. The first season netted a deficit of over $3,500, the second year, in spite of great economy, ran $400 behind. This year changed financial arrangements have made a surplus of a little over eleven hundred dollars. From now on there is no doubt the Daily will be a paying proposition. ## Mr. E. Napoleon Hebert

IS CANDIDATE FOR THE Board of Control

HE WILL BEGIN HIS CAMPAIGN IMMEDIATELY.
Office: 180 St. James Street. Tel. Main 5239
Residence: 684 Lafontaine Park, St. Louis 3662.

Mr. E. Napoleon Hebert respectfully calls to your attention the principal items which he will defend during his present campaign as candidate for the Board of Control.

1st. The welfare of the City of Montreal in all respects. The right to confer on herself franchises and privileges without the consent of the Legislature. The right to deal directly with transport, traction, light and other companies.

2nd. The transaction of civic matters of the City of Montreal by thorough and competent business in a strictly business way, thereby avoiding, as far as possible, the useless waste of public funds.

3rd. That Montreal should construct for the laboring classes healthy, hygienic and well-lighted homes. That it is her duty to favor the organization of public playgrounds for children.

4th. The means to prevent the increase in infantile mortality. The building of refuges (a most efficient manner of aiding the public poor).

5th. The paving of our streets; the building of sidewalks with materials inspected and guaranteed by experts, giving Montreal less expensive roads; more durable, uniform and healthy.

Mr. E. Napoleon Hebert, in the course of the campaign which he will undertake, will give his entire programme, and prove its advantages. No doubt that with the impartial support given by the electors of Montreal, Mr. Hebert will be able to subscribe largely to putting in force at the City Hall the above measures.

Mr. Hebert, who is of strong personality, and is well known in business circles, will try to use to the very best advantage every penny placed in the public treasury of the City of Montreal. During the course of the last few years he has handled many large transactions of an amount upwards of eleven millions of dollars, and all who have entered into business transactions with him, directly or indirectly, have been thoroughly satisfied with his frank, loyal and honest manner, which prevailed in all his dealings.

MAJOR STEPHENS FOR REFERENDUM

Pledges Himself at Mass Meeting to Refer Tramways Question to People.

WANTS NEW CITY CHARTER

Instead of Amending Old One Every Year — Enthusiastic Crowd Fills Monument National.

Geo Washington Stephens

Before a mass meeting that filled both floors of the Monument Nationale, with a number of ladies occupying the boxes and groups of McGill, Laval and Polytechnical School students posted at strategic points, where they led in prolonged displays of enthusiasm whenever a telling point was made, Major George Washington Stephens last night laid out the programme that he pledges himself to support if elected to the mayoralty, the principal plank of which is reference by means of a referendum to the citizens of any contract to be made with the Tramways Company.

"The present contract with the Tramways Company," he said, "has about nine years yet to run and there is plenty of time for us to make an arrangement that will be advantageous to the city, the people and the company. But before we make any new contract we must make a comprehensive plan to cover all phases of the future development of this city; in the matter of boulevards, roads, streets, sewers, parks, waterworks, etc., such a plan to provide for the time when this city shall have a million and a half inhabitants. A contract with the Tramways Company should also look forward to such development, but before I sign any such contract I pledge myself here tonight to submit it to the judgment of the people by means of a referendum, and that is more than my opponent is doing," added the Major. "He says he has a plan, but though we hear a great deal about it we never see it."

When Major Stephens' carriage turned from St. Catherine street towards the Monument Nationale he was met by a band of Laval University students who with banners and torches escorted him to the theatre, where his appearance was the signal for a prolonged outburst of cheering. Major Stephens made his principal address in French, speaking a few words in English afterwards. With him on the platform were some two to three hundred of the city's leading citizens of both races, among whom were: Messrs. R. Huntly Drummond, Farquhar Robertson, Sheriff Lemieux, U. H. Dandurand, James Morgan, J. A. Vaillancourt, L. J. O. Beauchemin, C. A. Harwood, Arthur Gagnier, O. Gagnier, L. J. Tarte, Eugene Tarte, Michael Hirsch, Joseph Quintal, A. L. Caron, E. H. Lemay, Anson McKim, Alphonse Racine, R. de Bray, R. L. Calder, Hon. A. Simard, Fred Tremblay, Alderman Emard, L. A. Wilson, Herbert Meldrum, E. Montet, and others. In the boxes were several ladies, among them professor Carrie Derrick, representing the Local Council of Women, and Dr. Ritchie England, representing the Women's Suffrage Association.

QUALIFIED IF ANYONE IS.

Referring to his qualifications to be a candidate for the mayoralty, Major Stephens said: "I am accused of not being a citizen of Montreal, where I was born and where I have lived all my life; where I pay all my taxes, where I attended school, college and university; where my family has lived for a hundred years and where my father and mother are buried. Well, gentlemen, I will fight for my rights as well as those who are fighting to prevent me going to the City Hall. I am qualified to run for the mayoralty here if anyone is."

"I am accused of being opposed to a municipal library. But I am in favor of not one but several libraries in different quarters of the city. I am accused of not being a French-Canadian. Well, it is difficult to please some people in this world. I cannot change the blood in my veins, but that does not prevent me from respecting your language, your ideals and your customs, while at the same time respecting my own."

Major Stephens then read a letter which he had written to Le Devoir last week, in which he emphasized that he stood unequivocally for the same rights to French-Canadians in Ontario and other provinces as the English Protestants received in the province of Quebec.

Continuing, he replied to certain objections that he was spending most of his time travelling in foreign countries for pleasure, stating that, while he had travelled much he had profited by what he had seen; that he had examined municipal problems in many large cities and had secured much valuable information which would be useful in the government of Montreal.

Before proceeding with an examination of the several municipal questions forming his programme, Major Stephens stated that he was present as a candidate for the mayoralty, a statement that was received with vociferous applause. He was a candidate for the mayoralty of a city with a population of 600,000 and a property valuation of $800,000,000. It was therefore evident that Montreal needed a strong business administration to face the problems of the future. "I am in favor," he said, "of a square deal for the city and for anyone who has business with the city. What should we do to make Montreal the most beautiful and healthful of cities? If you want to know my idea on this question it is simply this: Stop crying that our city is badly governed; that its streets are dirty and that our institutions are not good. Let us stop being fault-finders, systematic fault-finders, and let us suppress for good those who are always complaining and doing nothing. Helping and improving what exists is much better than fruitless complaints that end in nothing. Let me say this, that in all my travels the best cities I saw were those in which reigned the spirit of civic pride, and the worst governed cities were those in which reigned the spirit of jealousy and discord."

Major Stephens concluded this part of his address by saying that it was his hope to arouse in the hearts of our citizens a greater pride in Montreal, and with that he hoped to improve the existing conditions.

WOULD HAVE NEW CHARTER.

Referring to the programme on which he seeks election he dealt first with the question of the city charter, which he said had been so much amended that it was difficult now to discover what were the real powers of the city. He proposed to discontinue the practice of amending the charter every year, and to prepare a new charter, more simple and more modern. The Montreal charter, said Major Stephens, was closely connected with the autonomy of the city. Every year delegations went down to Quebec to get new charter powers. Personally he thought the time had come to stop going to Quebec, and his own opinion was that Montreal should possess a charter with sufficient powers to administer its own affairs.

Discussing necessary public improvements for the city, Major Stephens said there should first be a general plan prepared, a plan designed not only for the city as it now is with half a million inhabitants, but for a city of a million and a half, a plan that would show large boulevards for the future, construction of sewers, extension of streets, as well as the creation of public parks and workingmen's districts, with sanitary dwellings, and finally an adequate waterworks system. He also discussed questions of public health, emphasizing the necessity of protecting in every way possible the lives of young children, who are the citizens of tomorrow.

As to the public library, Major Stephens stated that the city should have a central library building in Lafontaine Park, with branch libraries in other parts of the city.

REFERENDUM ON FRANCHISE.

"And now we come to the most important phase of a city's life," said Major Stephens in conclusion. "I refer to the question of transportation," upon which he proceeded to say that Montreal should study the best means of transportation for the people, whether by surface lines, or by underground system, or by elevated lines, or by auxiliary vehicles, such as automobiles for districts where the first named systems could not be operated. All of these means of transportation should be studied and the one or more found most suitable adopted.

In summing up the situation, Major Stephens said: "The contract between the Tramways Company and the city has about nine years yet to run and we have plenty of time without causing the Tramways Company any injury, and with great advantage to the city, to prepare for the future. Here is my plan: First, I want first of all a square deal, an equitable arrangement for the city, for the people and for the company; second, before doing this we must inform the Tramways Company. 'Gentlemen, put your cards face up on the table, play fair, and Montreal will do the same.' The city of Montreal wishes to grant you full justice by according to you a fair contract. Third, before signing this contract we must prepare a general plan for the city, showing our boulevards, our new parks, our water works systems and sewers, and we must prepare for a Montreal with a population of a million and a half inhabitants to be given transportation. Then let us prepare together an equitable contract for the company and for the city, but before accepting it, and before signing it, I pledge myself here tonight to submit it to the judgment of the people by means of a referendum. This is the method adopted by large companies themselves; they consult their shareholders for the ratification of an important contract, and if it is good for the companies it cannot be bad for the people."

In concluding, Major Stephens again addressed himself to the citizens of Montreal to do their utmost to make the city a beautiful and healthful place for its inhabitants to dwell in.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Mr. A. N. Brodeur, who occupied the chair owing to the indisposition of Mr. J. A. Vaillancourt, in introducing Major Stephens, spoke of him as a whole-hearted supporter of the entente-cordiale that had existed between the two races in Montreal long before Britain and France had ever thought that they could become friends. Mr. Charles Query, who also preceded the candidate in a short address recommended Major Stephens' work while president of the Harbor Commission as the greatest guarantee Montrealers could have that he would make good at the head of civic affairs.

Mr. Joseph Archambault, K.C., remarked that while Mr. Stephens was at the head of the Harbor Commission he had done full justice to French-speaking citizens, and now was the time for the French-Canadians to recognize and reward his good work there. It was their duty to respect the tradition that the city should have alternate French and English-speaking mayors.

Mr. J. H. Sherrard and Mr. R. L. Calder also spoke, the latter referring sarcastically to a recent statement that the Reform Club was training Major Stephens for the House of Commons. Such a ridiculous assertion might be dismissed, for any one who knew the Major knew that he was already trained and would do honor to that somewhat exclusive tribunal at the present moment.

C.P.R. APPRENTICE COURSE

The first of May will see a largely increased number of enthusiastic students entering the Canadian Pacific Railway Special Apprentices Course. This course is not compulsory, as general opinion seems to think it is, but is merely an advantageous offer on the part of the railroad company, and that there is faith in it and in the Transportation Course in the University, is demonstrated by the number taking advantage of the opportunities.

Some eight or ten men will be found in the Angus shops, including D. M. McDonald, of Edmonton; Murray Robertson, of Montreal; J. E. McLeod, of Bridgeport, Connecticut; S. J. W. Laddy, of Dundas; E. L. Lamborn, of Ottawa; and W. H. Bennett, of New Glasgow, Quebec. These men are all Transportation men, and there will also be probably two or three mechanicals, though only one, R. Thompson, has filled in his application.

A number are due for roundhouse work, including "Wattie" Sutherland, and certainly three or four others. Road Service as extra-men, commands the attention of D. C. McLaurin, T. Henry, "Buck" Todd, and J. S. Hall, while F. A. Watkins, J. W. Twibbero and one or two others, will work as extra brakemen.

Of the graduating class, J. M. Heap, Lex Helmer, A. J. Lawrence, and J. W. Reid start on station service.

Graduates still pursuing the course are E. E. Morkill, who is doing track work on the Chalk River subdivision; E. O. H. Norman, who is under the Master Mechanic at North Bay; and T. M. Hamer, who is just finishing the scores at the Hecla, Hecla.

Looking at it from every point of view, the work of the course is progressing splendidly, and already inquiries are being received from all over the continent in regard to the unique scheme carried on here between McGill and the Canadian railways.

He: "Why, I should imagine that a fortress would be—harder to silence."

HON. LOUIS CODERRE, SECRETARY OF STATE.

The Hon. Louis Coderre, K.C., Secretary of State, received his early training at Montreal College. He graduated in law from Laval University in 1892. Upon graduation he became a partner in the firm of Primeau and Coderre. At the present time he is with Coderre, Fortin and Coderre. He held the position of City Solicitor for St. Henri until it was merged with Montreal. He occupied the position of Solicitor of the Montreal Bar, an elective office, for five years.

It was not until 1905, that he entered the political arena, although he had always been noted for his keen interest in all matters which affected the local and national life of the people of this country. After being twice defeated in Hochelaga, on one occasion for a seat in the provincial house, and on the other for a seat in the House of Commons, in the last General Election, Mr. Coderre ran as the Conservative candidate against his old opponent, Mr. Rivet, and polled a majority of 373. Shortly after he was appointed Secretary of State in the Borden Cabinet.

NATIONAL SPORTING CLUB.

The National Sporting Club, Limited, has been incorporated under the laws of the Province of Quebec, the 17th of January last.

Its object is to promote sports and athletics in all their branches, encourage and train Canadian athletes, and organize competitions between the best of them and foreign stars.

We all know of the successes achieved by our own athletes, each time they have had the opportunity of being properly managed.

The membership fee to the National Sporting Club has been made One Dollar ($1.00) yearly, thus enabling those with small means, to take advantage of all the privileges of the Club.

All the applications will be submitted to the Board of Directors, who will have sole power to accept or reject them.

The Board of Directors will also have the right, at any time, to expel from the club any member who will give reason for complaint. The decision of the Directors, in this matter, will be without appeal of any kind.

It is well understood, that an extra charge will be made to members, for each of the privileges of the club they will want to enjoy; but positively no money except members of the club will be admitted to the club rooms and to the Boxing Exhibitions.

Membership cards are not negotiable; members bartering, selling or lending them, will be expelled, and parties using such cards will be escorted at the door and held responsible to the full extent of the law, for any damage that may ensue to the club.

The directors have in sight several properties of various capacities, intended as club houses, but, before closing any deals, they want to ascertain the favor their proposition will meet with the sporting public.

The Club is promoting immediately boxing exhibitions for which the best exponents of the manly art have been secured. They will appear from time to time at the several tournaments organized by the Club, advertisements thereof will be made in due time in the sporting columns of the daily and weekly press, and club members will be notified personally by mail.

During the coming summer, automobile, motorcycle, bicycle and aeroplane races will be staged under the patronage of the National Sporting Club, and members will benefit of special reduced prices.

It is the intention of the Directors of the National Sporting Club to enlarge their sphere of action as much as possible, and enter almost every field of sport.

Applications are received at the office of the Club, Suite 9, La Presse Building, Telephone Main 4915.

SEASON 1913-14 IN SPORT

With Five Intercollegiate Championships McGill Has Had Great Year

In reviewing the past season, it must be said that McGill has had a fine year in the realm of sport. With five intercollegiate championships out of eight, and the championship of the Montreal English Rugby League, snugly stowed away in the custody of the College on the Hill, McGill may congratulate herself on having had one of the most satisfactory seasons within memory.

Early in December, the Intercollegiate Tennis team opened the season by winning the championship from Queens, Varsity and R. M. C. They created a record by winning all their matches on the first day. McGill scored 18 points to 3 by Varsity, 1 by R. M. C. and none by Queens. George Laing, by defeating Mills, in three straight sets, became individual intercollegiate champion. This year's meet will take place in Kingston.

Undoubtedly the championship, the winning of which brought most joy to the heart of every McGill man, was the Intercollegiate Rugby title. Under the capable and efficient guidance of Frank Shaughnessy—"Shaz"—as he is universally known—the senior fourteen went through the season with only one defeat chalked up against them. After having defeated Queens, Varsity and R. M. C. by overwhelming scores, the Red and White unexpectedly fell before Queens at Kingston, to the tune of 12-7. However, they retrieved this defeat by winning easily from R. M. C. here, and defeating Toronto in the final game in the Queen City by a score of 22-14. The season was chiefly remarkable for the new men brought out, whose good work last year augurs well for the chances of McGill when the veterans who played last year's game for the Red and White in Toronto last November will be no longer here.

Under the able coaching of "Sinc" McEwen, of 1912 football fame, the Intermediate Rugby team made an excellent showing, despite the fact that they lost several of their best men to the seniors. They easily defeated Queens, both here and in Kingston, by 12-0 and 12-0. They lost to a total score of 64 to 12, but out of the home and home games for the Dominion title, by a score of 20-3. In the second game here the McGill II. won out, after a hard game, by 22-21. So they lost on the round by 41-26. However, this was a very fine showing for the second team. Though the Juniors did not get much chance to get in the limelight, yet they played a part in the season, and played a good, steady game. The feature of their season was the home and home matches with Bishop's College of Lennoxville.

The Track Club enjoyed a most prosperous season, starting with the Freshmen-Sophomore sports on the Campus, comprising the Inter-Year Sports, and finishing up with the Intercollegiate Meet at Kingston, which Varsity won with 70 points, but nearest competitor being McGill, with 43, 25 of which were made by Macdougall. "Big Mac" also broke the College record at the Inter-Year Meet at the M. A. A. Grounds, by throwing the 16-lb. hammer 126 ft. in. Eric Cushing won the College Championship for aggregate points scored at the Inter-Year Sports.

Another championship, though outside the realm of Intercollegiate sport, which belongs to McGill, is that of the Montreal English Rugby League. The "Rugger" team went through their season without suffering a defeat. In a league match at Lachine, the referee gave Lachine the game by 3-0, after disallowing four of McGill's tries. The Red and White's protest was upheld by the League, and in the replay McGill completely outclassed their rivals, winning out by 2-0. The Red and White XV also made a fine showing against a picked team of All-Stars, winning their game by 8-5, the other game ending in a draw.

After an interesting Inter-Faculty Assault-at-Arms and a successful meet with the M. A. A. McGill's boxers hooked up with the Highlanders here, while the wrestlers went to Cornell to invade the territory of the American Intercollegiate Champions. The grapplers were defeated, but the mit artists won out. The result of the Intercollegiate Assault-at-Arms, held in the Armoury of the Victoria Rifles, at the end of February, in boxing Toronto showed great superiority over Queens and McGill, the only local men winning their bouts being Montgomery and Ross, who defeated Laycock and Young, both of Queens, in the 145-lb. and heavyweight classes, respectively.

In the wrestling bouts McGill won five out of six bouts; Banfield, 115; Audette, 125; Davies, 135; McPhail, 155; and Trapp, heavy, were the winners, while McDonald lost to Matheson of Queens. Queens won both fourth bouts from Varsity and, as McGill had no entries, won the championship. Since 1909, when the B. W. and F. Union was established, one championship is a matter of dispute. Queens have won three, and McGill one. On the whole, Varsity seems to produce the better boxers, and Queens the better wrestlers. This year, however, proved an exception to the latter rule.

Always strong in aquatic sports, McGill again demonstrated their superiority by winning both the Intercollegiate Swimming Meet and the Water Polo Championship. In the latter, the Red and White team led at half time by 3-0, and though Varsity came back strong, they won out by 5 goals to 1.

At the start of the season, George Hodgson, the Olympic champion, announced his definite retirement from swimming. However, when the Intercollegiate Meet came off, who was there with the goods, but George himself. McGill won every event except the 50 yards back stroke, in which the 50 yards team led at half time by 3-0, and though Varsity came back strong, they won out by 5 goals to 1.

The latest championship to come to McGill is that brought back from Kingston last Saturday by the basketball team. McGill's superior speed and combination turned the trick, the local five winning out by a 22-20 score. This was the fifth Intercollegiate Championship won by McGill this year.

On the whole, the past season affords much for which we are glad, and for which we can be thankful, and the prospects, generally speaking, are for a continuance, during the season of 1914-15, of the successes won by McGill during the past year. "The old order changeth, yielding place to new," and though McGill will greatly miss the services of many a tried and proven veteran next year, yet their places will be filled, as capably, let us hope, by new-comers to the halls of old McGill, and when the Red and White will have won EVERY championship going, we know that they will join with us in giving the battle-cry of their Alma Mater—

VOLUME THREE

With this day's issue we bring our Third Volume to a close.

A year which has set the stamp of undergraduate approval on many experiments, has been propitious also to the undergraduate organ and its work. With the help of the students themselves, of their leaders in the various student societies, of the teaching staff in all the faculties, but most of all, of our advertisers, we have materially prospered.

Our financial statement elsewhere in this issue, marks another milestone left behind, and we are well advanced past the experimental stage. The creation of the genius of W. E. G. Murray has nearly doubled in size. All the advantages that of a metropolitan paper can offer have been utilized to systematize and energize the presentation of the news. Its gathering has been made easier by the sharing of labour and of responsibility.

We have been able to establish divisions and branches of our work untouched in former years. The Alumni Column, the Round About the College, Futurities, Exchanges, Reviews, and Heresy Column have marked steps in which the staff have attempted to make the paper better both in value and attraction.

The news matter now appearing in the Daily has been divided into three grand divisions, each meeting a certain need. The sport has been gathered together, and presented in such compactness on the third page that each item in it has been benefited by that position. This is in accordance with the policy of the city papers. Our Second Page presents the more or less magazine matter, and has been successful at least in attracting many contributions from the students themselves. The first and last page are left for the presentation of the news of other student activities, and the last also for the editorial.

The managing editors sometimes build castles in the air in which a Daily with a great staff of efficient reporters is dimly outlined. A downtown and an uptown staff; some reporters who bring in the stories, and others who write them and who order the headings and the placing of the news in the paper; a staff of telephone men who write the news stories phoned in by reporters at night meetings are all features from which the results would be immediate and far-reaching.

The efforts of a hard-working, co-operating staff, have brought this ideal of ours much nearer than it was when the first number of Volume Three fell from the presses. The Athletic page day by day is placed in new editorial hands. Editors for several departments have been appointed, and have done excellent work. There is an attempt to present a well-headed, and well written Daily in the hands of the reader each morning. Best of all, we hope to start next year with a staff acquainted with the work, and the lure too, of the Daily, knowing and feeling its needs, having themselves a deep interest in its success, and ready to put heart and soul into it next autumn.

As we pen the last words for this volume, may we hope that the men who will offer you Volume Four in its entirety in 1915 shall receive the support and the sympathy so cordially extended to those who to-day lay down this year's burden!

EDITORIAL NOTES

The annual meeting of the Students Society this morning demands the presence of every undergraduate. The report which this year's Students' Council has to present will be the best in the history of the Council. The Council has been able to make money this year and has clearly shown that this has only been possible because it has carried out a consistent policy effectively and well. Be at the meeting this morning. There is a surprise in store for you.

The Daily bespeaks the help and attention of the students to the McGill Annual whose publication time fast approaches. Better than ever, it is the result of hard work and preparation.

FUTURITIES

To-day: Meeting of Student's Society, Lectures off from 10-11. Tomorrow: Wicksteed Competition. Tennis Club meeting at 5:15 in the Hall.

Soccer Club at 5, in the Hall. Historical Club. Students' Council meeting. Saturday: Wicksteed Competition. Thursday, March 26: Western Club.

ROUND ABOUT THE COLLEGE

The meeting of the French Club which was to have been held last night, has been postponed until Tuesday next, the 24th, at 5:45. Unavoidable complications at the last moment necessitated the change in plans, but, nevertheless, the promised surprise will keep.

H. G. Henson of Second Year Architecture, heads the list of McGill contestants in the annual designing competition which Harvard and three other big colleges across the line have entered. The designs, which, this year, had to be designs of Banks, will be forwarded to New York, and judged upon there. Contestants only learned of the subject of the designs when they entered the examining room.

Western Club will hold its annual meeting, a week from Thursday, those of electing officers, and plans for next season. Failure to do this has resulted in confusion on several occasions already.

An interesting lecture on Chinese Art in the Orient was given last night in the Engineering Building by Professor Mavor. The lecture was illustrated by many views, which were well worth seeing, and Dr. Mavor dealt with each phase of Chinese art, in a particularly lucid and interesting manner.

The last meeting of the Historical Society will be held on Thursday evening, March 19th. The meeting is important, as the election of officers for the year will take place, and the Committee of Investigation will hand in their report. All members are requested to be present, and it is hoped that those who have not paid their dues will come prepared to do so.

How McGill's Five Won Title

Fifth Intercollegiate Championship This Year

Another McGill team has brought the championship of their league to Montreal. The basketball quintette, by defeating Toronto Varsity in Kingston last Saturday, won the Intercollegiate Basketball championship for 1914.

A most successful season was that of the Red and White Five. One game, and one only, did they lose, and that one to Varsity on the floor of the U. of T. gymnasium. The McGill boys showed better speed, combination and scoring ability, as well as sterling defence work, than any of their competitors in the Intercollegiate, due to the coaching of Mr. Lamb, who has given all his time and energy to turning out a first class team to represent "Old McGill." That his efforts have not been in vain the season just terminated sufficiently shows.

During the holidays, the McGill five played the Ottawa V. M. C. A. an exhibition game in the Capital. After the most fiercely contested game ever seen in Ottawa, McGill were one point behind within half a minute of full time, and in the next thirty seconds scored two baskets, winning out by 24-21.

Their first league game was against Queens, in the Central Y. M. C. A. gym. McGill displayed good combination and excellent shooting, besides putting up a very strong defensive game. A feature of Queens' style of play was that the Tricolor players resorted to long passes quite frequently. McTavish and Kennedy starred for McGill, while Buchanan and Sutherland did the good work for Queens. The score at half time was 34-6, but Queens came back strong, and the final score was 40-16 for the local collegians.

The next Friday, the team journeyed to where they met with their only defeat of the season. The game was a rough one, much close checking being indulged in. The floor of the Varsity gym is much larger than any on which the McGill team had previously played, and this seemed to be felt by the players during the first half, in which time the Torontonians scored 11 points to McGill's 3. However, the Red and White came back strong in the second half, and in a good finish the game ended with the score standing 22-13 in favor of Varsity. Varsity showed up well on the defence, with Scott as their principal star. McTavish did most work for McGill.

During the following week the team had no game, and on the 7th of February, while Varsity were gaining a rather easy victory over Queens (score, 40-18), they defeated the Central Y. M. C. A. in an exhibition match by a score of 46-22. In this game the forwards made a good showing, and the shooting was more accurate.

On the 14th, McGill lined up on the floor of the local Y. M. C. A. against the strong Varsity quintette. After Varsity had obtained an early lead, McGill woke up, and the first half ended with the score 14-10 in favor of the locals. Varsity came back strong, and after twenty minutes of play, during which it was anybody's game, McGill emerged victors, the final count being 23-18. Three times the score was tied, and on five occasions the Blue and White were only one point behind. Varsity showed a great fighting spirit. The honors of the day were about equally divided between Thompson, Kennedy, McTavish, Conover, Scott and Cook.

On the 21st, the McGill five went up to Kingston, where they defeated Queens by 32-25, the score at half time being 17-11 for the visitors. Lee Smith, who took Baldwin's place at centre, on account of the latter's having suffered from an attack of bronchitis, put up a great game for the Red and White. Speed and skill won for McGill a game which was only brilliant at times.

This victory brought McGill level with Toronto in the league race, the standing of the teams being as follows:

Team	W.	L.	P.	A.
McGill	3	1	108	81
Varsity	3	1	99	63
Queens	0	4	69	121

This necessitated a play-off, and after much dickering and interchange of telegrams, it was decided that the final game should be played at Queens gym, on the 14th of March.

The final game and its result is still fresh in the minds of all. After a desperate struggle, in which the score was three times tied, McGill managed to land a 22-20 victory. The match was almost a repetition of the Varsity game here; overcoming the early lead of the Torontonians, the Red and White led at half time, and, although the score was tied during the second half, they were never headed again. Varsity were without the services of Capt. Thompson; Kennedy and Zimmerman played strongly for Varsity, while Williscroft, Kennedy and Baldwin were the stars for McGill.

WHERE IT BELONGED.

Little Jim, though he attended Sunday School every week, did not know quite so much about Scriptural history as he ought to have known; but when his sister asked him: "Where was Solomon's temple?" he was rather angry that she should think him unable to answer a simple question like that.

"Don't you think I know anything?" he asked.

"Well, where was it, then?" his sister repeated, and then he informed her. "On the side of his forehead, of course—the same as other folks. Do you think I'm a dunce?"—Tid-Bits.
